Grade 1 Week 16

Playground acceptance

Remember how important it was to be quickly chosen for a team in school contests? Good physical skills are very important for acceptance and for leadership. A trim, healthy six-year-old will be able to hold his own on the playground, where he can be accepted — or rejected.

If SIX has been overweight, he should begin to slim down about now. If he continues to be overweight, it is important to his physical, as well as his social and emotional development to get medical help. Most six-year-olds, if left to themselves, will not overeat and will eat foods that are not fat producing. They like raw vegetables better than cooked ones. Perhaps the compulsion to be always moving makes SIX like foods that can be eaten "on the run."

Money sense

Money is becoming of real interest to SIX. Both an allowance and rewards of money give him familiarity with the names of coins and a vague knowledge of how many it takes to buy a desired object. SIX tends to be a "saver," squirreling away his hoard in a special place. When SIX counts his pieces of treasure, he enhances his math readiness. When he spends his money, he must "decide" — and "deciding" for him is hard since his "wants" change so quickly and drastically.

Contradictions

SIX is full of contradictions. Sometimes he acts mature; other times he will revert to using baby-talk. If you approach him gently about this, he might whisper the reason: "So I won't have to do hard things." His new experiences in school do overload SIX from time to time, and he becomes fatigued. A reversion to earlier patterns of behavior alerts you that he needs rest.

Religion and ceremony

SIX likes to participate in short ritualistic services (as in church school or synagogue) and more so if there are candles and simple ceremony involved. This shows his very real attempt to conform to what is demanded of him. Prayers are important to him now, and he truly believes that whatever he asks for will be granted. SIX's feelings of belonging and order in this aspect of his life help counteract the frenzy he feels in other new experiences.

*"Education is a companion which no misfortune can depress, no crime can destroy, no enemy can alienate,
no despotism can enslave."*

—Joseph Addison—
